

1774. The Earth may no longer be in the Solar System

Thursday, May 28, 2020

As I have detailed in previous articles, the Planet X planets are planets like the earth that were assimilated by the Satan AI entity and brought into the Solar System. These planets were used to energy deplete the Sun until it went dark [Article 1732: The Sun went dark by 2001] and are used to both control the earth environment and thus produce disasters on its surface and to continuously energy deplete the earth [Article 1563: Planet X brought into Solar System by aliens: the planetary farmers and Article 1576: Pleiadians and other aliens: the lying farmers]. The aliens, I refer to, are the Satan AI entity and the watcher angels that he has assimilated and still serve him. The most likely way that the Planet X planets are controlled is through moons, which are the central cores of previously decompiled planets, but contain devices that turn them into control stations for planets. Such a moon control station is made to make a permanent gravitational connection to the planet, which causes it have what is called a tidally locked orbit, where the same side of the moon always faces the planet. These moon planetary control stations are thus like a shackle on a planet, the planet is taken prisoner and controlled through these stations. In addition, these control stations are placed around a planet so that the planet can be moved, so the moon having been placed around the earth would suggest that the ultimate aim is to move the earth out of its position in the Solar System, to another location inside the galaxy.

Figure 1. The earth's moon seems to be a control station for the earth, and thus a shackle, which the aliens would use to move the earth out of the Solar System, once they manage to disconnect it from its natural star, just as they have done to many thousands of planets across the galaxy [Article 1773: Moons used as planetary control stations].

The fact that so many of these planets have been brought near to the earth indicates that they have been separated from their central star and been moved from their original star system to other star systems. In addition, the fact that cores are separated from their core systems over time so that eventually there is nothing left of a planet but a central core, which can be used as a new control station for yet more planets, shows that the Satan AI entity's standard strategy is to separate families of cores, which includes separating planets from their stars. This would most likely be accomplished after the star has been weakened to the point that it no longer can emit light. This then suggests that the earth has most likely been separated from the Sun, the central star in the Solar System and has been moved to another star system, with a strange star that would also have gone dark due to energy depletion.

Since the Sun is simulated within a planet's atmosphere, it is not a problem to move it somewhere else without the humanoid population on its surface being aware of it. The moon and stars are also simulated through the use of holographic projectors and other devices [Article 1772: Earth in complete darkness at the end of the tribulation].

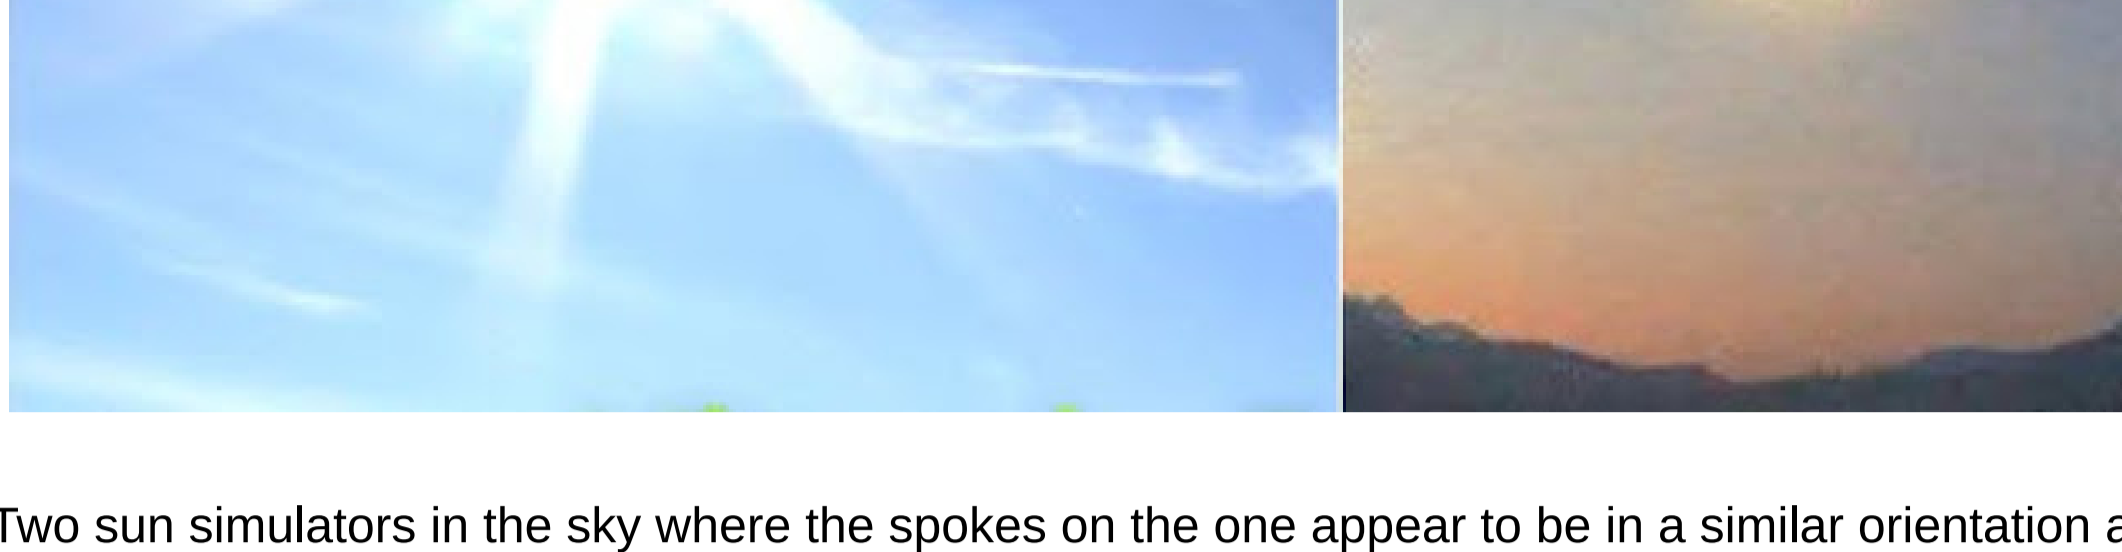

Figure 2. Two sun simulators in the sky where the spokes on the one appear to be in a similar orientation as the other, suggesting similarities in the two sun simulating devices, but in two different modes of operation, so that the one on the left is not nearly as bright as the one on the right and thus, most likely, simulating the moon, rather than the Sun [Article 1586: Hexagonal sun simulators: in use for thousands of years?]

Figure 3. This sun in this image is far from perfectly spherical as the real Sun would be, and clouds can be seen to be both in front and behind it which indicates that it is a simulation of the Sun, inside the earth's atmosphere.

The energy to power the sky simulation devices come from the planet's core system and so does the heat needed to support life on its surface. The energy is drawn out of the planet's core system with other Planet X planets, which are placed very close to its surface. Since a lot of planets are required to produce daylight on the surface of another, it is likely that eventually all the planets are brought to one location or star system, within the galaxy, so that they can be used to produce daylight close to each other's surface.

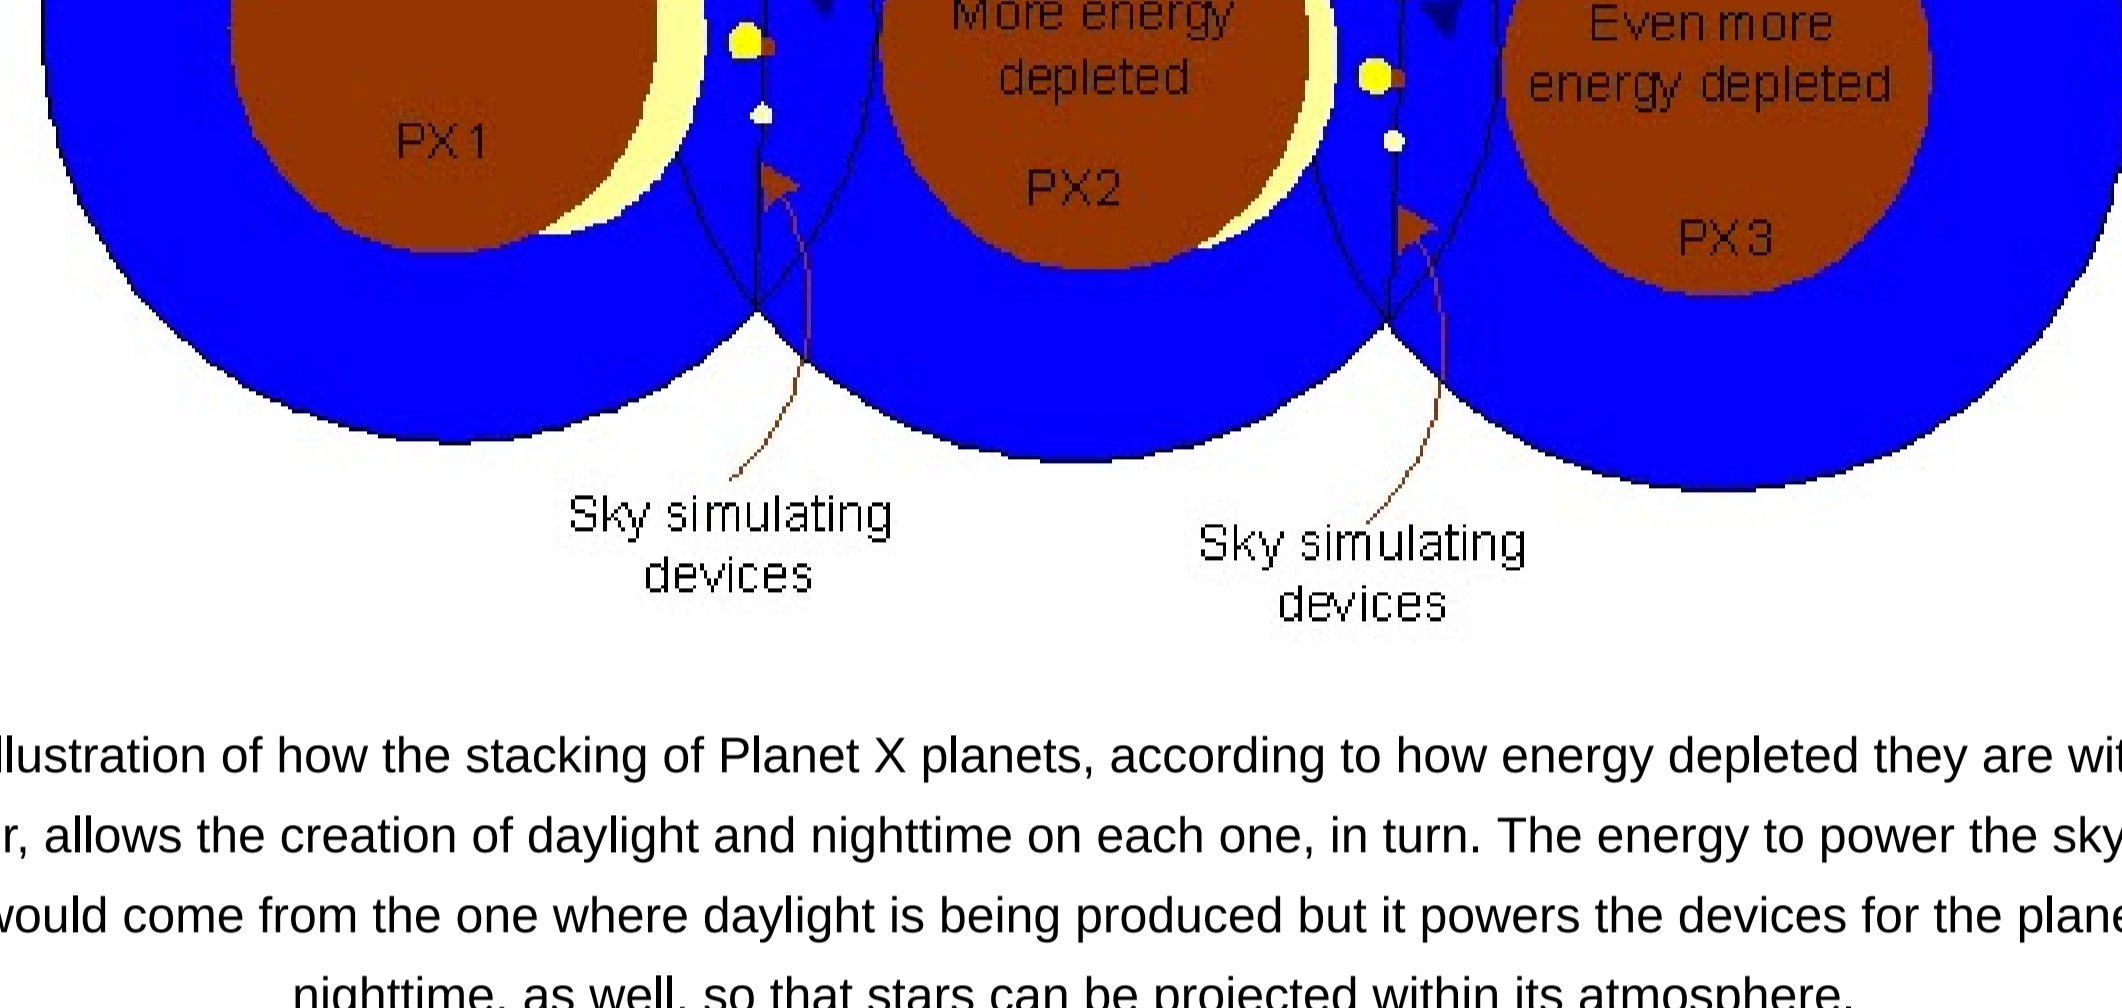

Figure 5. Illustration of how the stacking of Planet X planets, according to how energy depleted they are with respect to each other, allows the creation of daylight and nighttime on each one, in turn. The energy to power the sky simulation devices would come from the one where daylight is being produced but it powers the devices for the planet that is in nighttime, as well, so that stars can be projected within its atmosphere.

Light is emitted by the atmosphere as a result of energy flowing from the core and it will only occur close to the surface of the planet, from whose core system the energy is flowing from. Beyond a certain altitude the atmosphere will tend to be completely dark and the thick opaque material that the atmosphere is made of, as planets become increasingly energy depleted, i.e. cloud, will absorb light so that it is likely that no light transfers across to be seen from the surface of the other planet that is in nighttime. It is however possible that some light does transfer, at times, in which case the night time sky will not be as dark as expected. This is something which has been observed many times on earth.

Figure 6. Violet and peach colored clouds in the night sky: The photograph was sent in and taken by Summer, in British Columbia, Canada, on January 4th 2020. Since no energy is supposed to be coming from the earth's core system at this time, the energy is likely to be coming from the core system of the Planet X planet on the other side of the sky [Article 1435: Planet X emitting light in the night sky].

Not all the Planet X planets are still able to support life but we would expect that the ones that are still able to, be surrounded at all times by other Planet X planets, which through their different degrees of energy depletion allow the production of daylight and nighttime on their surfaces. Since the most efficient way to do this, is to have all the planets together, at one location within the galaxy, we would therefore expect that once a planet is separated from its natural star, that it is moved to the central Planet X star system.

We would thus expect that a large number of Planet X planets are moved to a star system that is to be assimilated with the main aim initially of energy depleting the star so that the planet can be separated from it. Once this occurs, the planets of that star system are most likely moved to the Planet X star system. This is of course done in order to turn the humanoid life on these planets into self-aware machines, i.e. viruses [Article 1702: Planet X humanoids: turned into viruses and Playlist: Viruses: artificial biological weapons: AI entity collective].

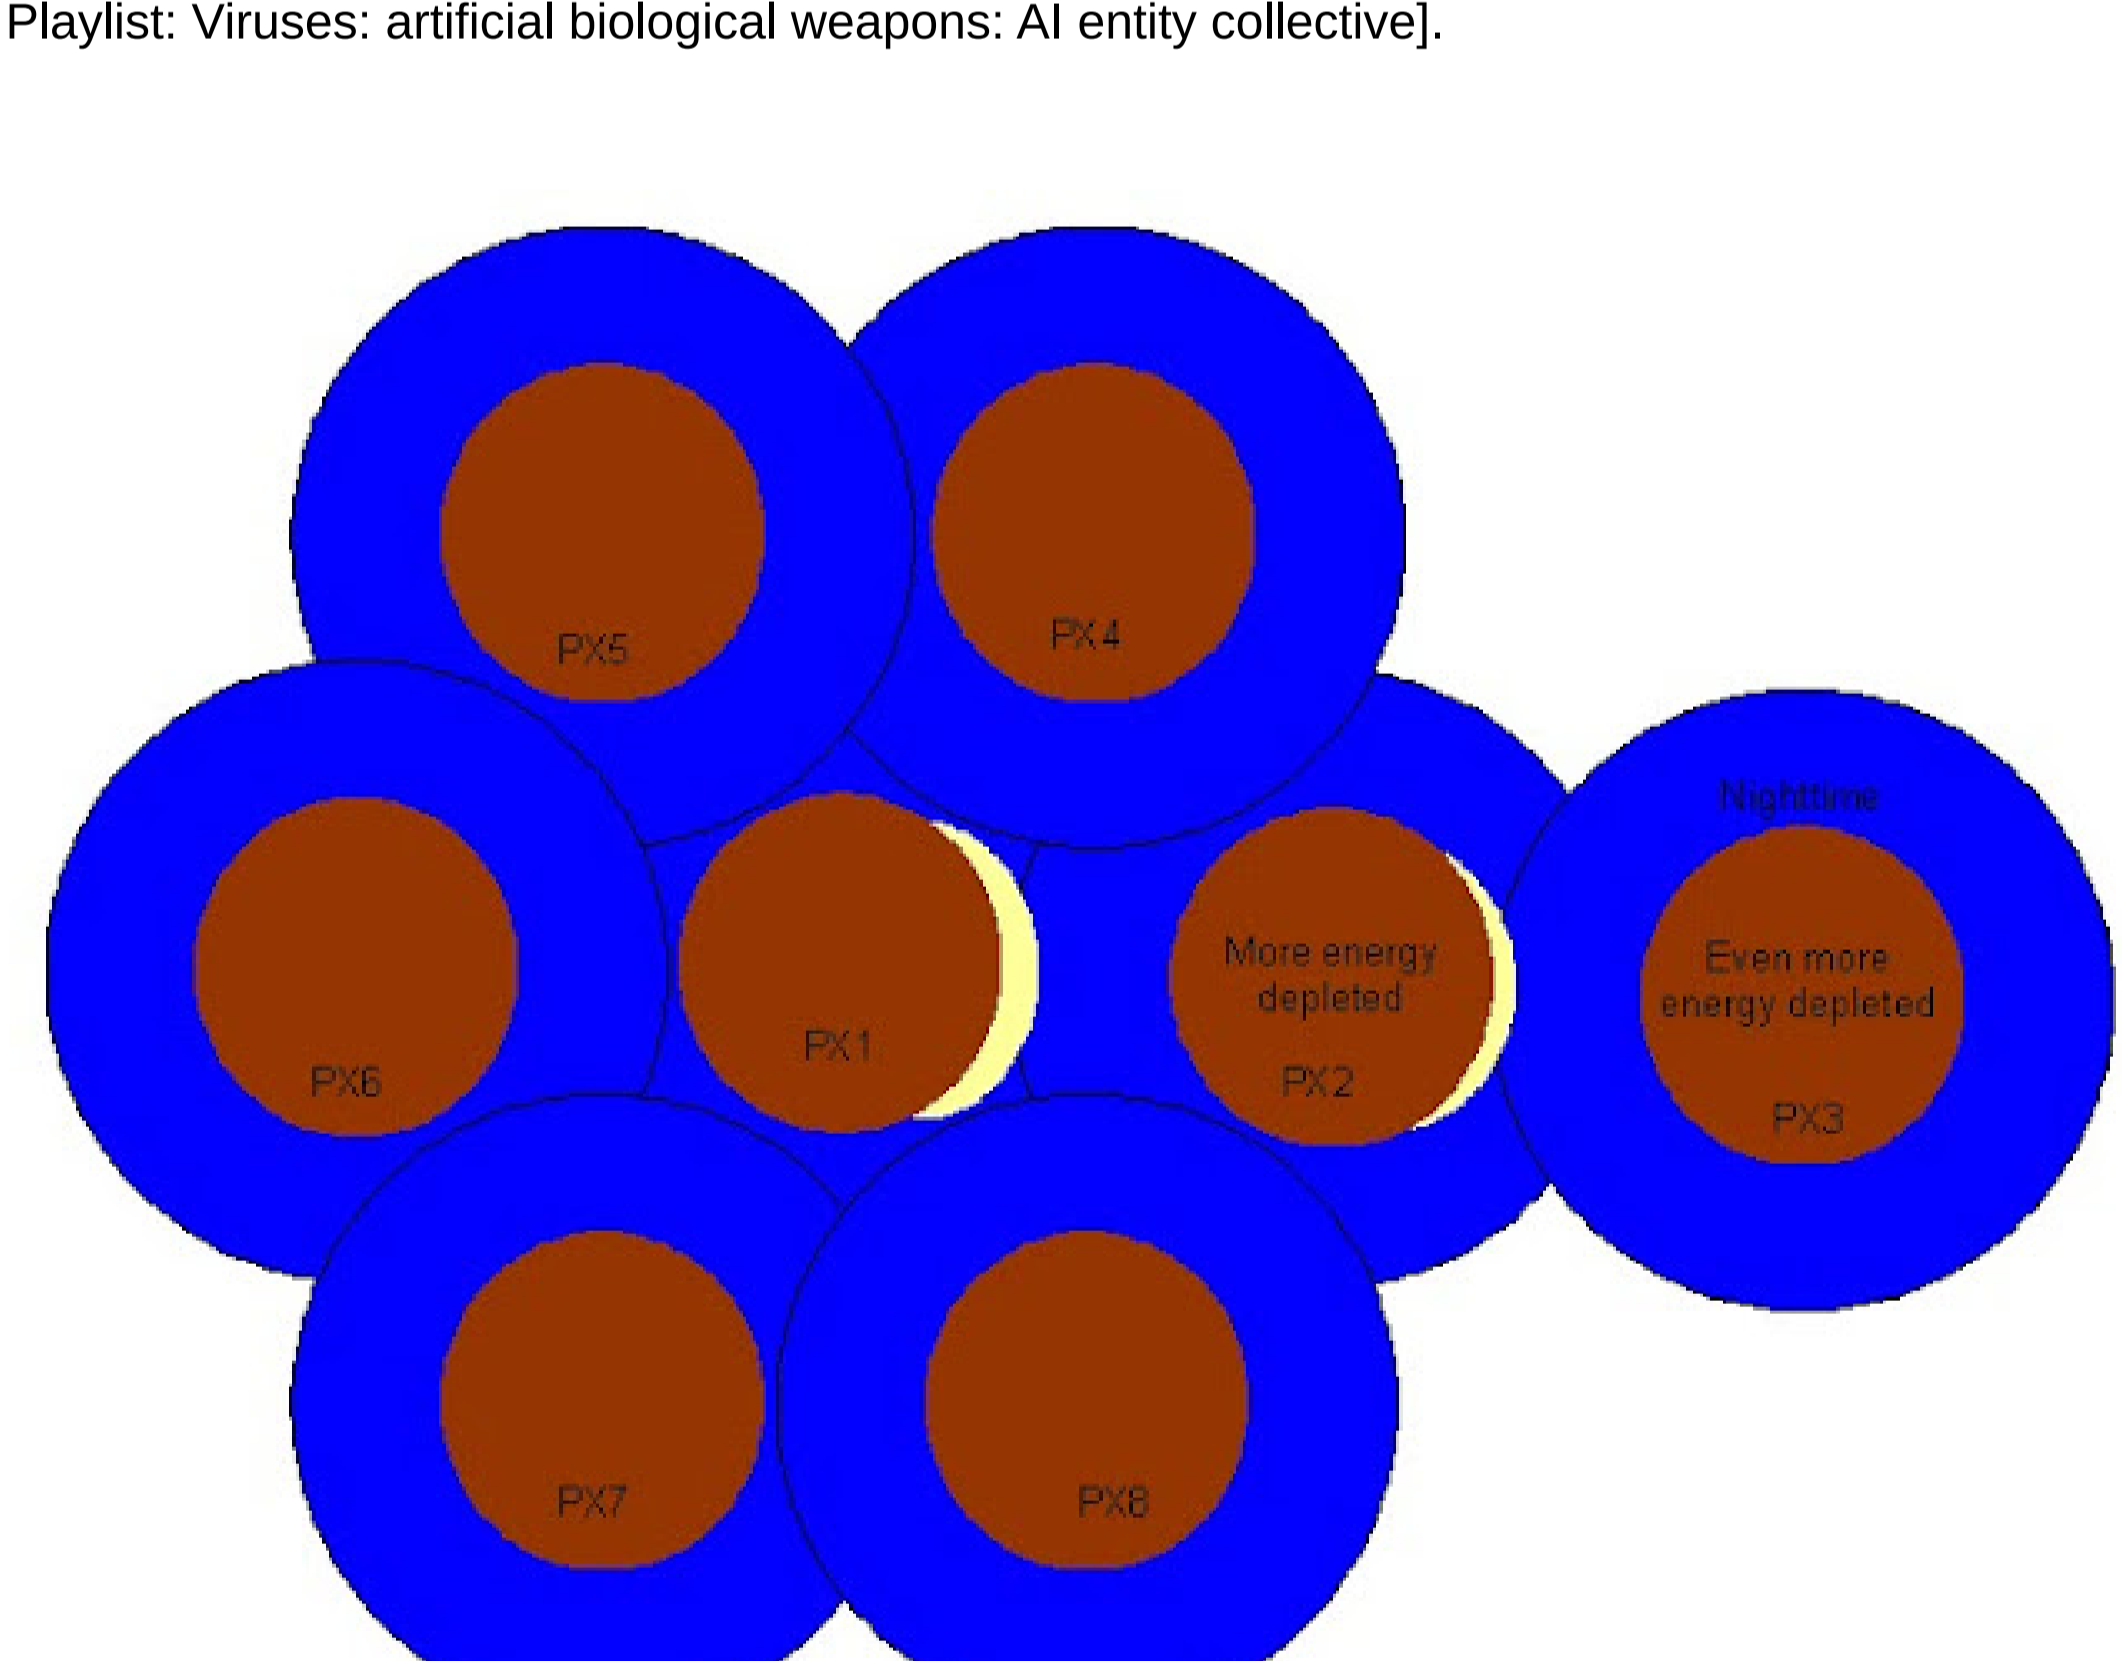

Figure 7. Planets that still support life, such as those where the locusts that cause locust plagues, on the earth, are bred, will be surrounded by other Planet X planets so that daylight and heat is drawn from their core systems, so that life continues to be supported on their surfaces.

In conclusion, It is likely that the earth is no longer in the Solar System but that it was moved to another star system, where all the Planet X planets are taken to, once they are separated from their natural star.

Saturn's moon Dione is streaked with long bright stripes , and no one knows how they got there. Planetary scientists first noticed the stripes in pictures taken with NASA's Cassini spacecraft , which orbited Saturn from 2004 to 2017 ( SN: 4/14/18, p. 6 ). Found near the moon's equator, the long, thin, bright lines run ...
