

1815. Planet X surface piece in the Greek Islands

Wednesday, June 17, 2020

Figure 1 below shows an aerial photograph of the Greek Island of Zakynthos, where we can see a huge piece of rock on top of the sand and thus not connected to the earth's bedrock indicating that it is a Planet X surface piece that has been placed on the surface of the earth and suggests that this whole island and most likely many more Greek Islands have been created by Planet X surface pieces.

Figure 1. Exposed bedrock, vertical hillsides and caverns at the bottom of the piece clearly, show that this a Planet X surface piece that has come in from a planet that experienced extreme energy absorption, which led to bedrock vanishing, due to being converted to energy, which is also known as the sinkhole formation process.

Planet X surface pieces can be found all over the earth [Playlist: Planet X surface pieces all over the earth].

Figure 2. Planet X surface pieces have been used all over the earth to create coastal cliffs. This one is in the Algarve, Portugal, and the cliffs are clearly on top of the sand and thus disconnected from the bedrock under the sand. They dropped from above on top of the sand. This rocky piece has many holes and caverns clearly indicating that sinkhole production was what caused the planet's surface to break up [Article 1512: Planet X surface debris pieces in Portugal].

Figure 3. The Maldives of the Philippines are covered in such pieces. The ocean is very shallow and it is littered with pieces of broken bedrock from one of the Planet X planets.

Figure 4. View from the sand, which would be original earth surface: the huge size of the cliff can be better discerned from here indicating that Planet X surface pieces deposited on the surface of the earth are huge.

Figure 5. Planet X surface pieces are also found in Iceland. This piece in particular shows that there is no possible erosion mechanism to explain the creation of vertical walls of exposed bedrock especially where a thin wall is produced. The bedrock that would be on either side of the wall and all around the cliffs bordering it would have vanished as a result of the sinkhole formation process as a result of Planet X gravitational connections, i.e. it was absorbed as energy by the core system of a more energy depleted planet than the planet that this piece originally belonged on.

In conclusion, an aerial photograph of the Greek Island of Zakynthos clearly reveals that it is made up of a huge piece of a Planet X planet which was deposited on the surface of the earth.

As I have written in a previous article, the fact that Satan when released from the bottomless pit after 1000 years, knowing that he will be thrown into the lake of fire if he deceives the nations, and yet goes on to do just that, whereas all he had to do was not do so, in order to avoid the lake of fire, suggests...
